

Living With Multiple Personalities: The Christine Ducommun Story

Christine Ducommun was a happily married wife and mother of two, when after moving back into her childhood home she began to experience panic attacks and bizarre flashbacks. Eventually diagnosed with Dissociative Identity Disorder (DID), Christine's story details an extraordinary twelve-year ordeal unraveling the secrets of her past and the daunting path she must take to heal from it. As she struggles to maintain a stable home for her growing children, therapy helps to identify a core group of four personalities and understand how each helped her cope with her childhood and influence her adult life. Her life tails into unimaginable chaos with bouts of drinking and drug abuse, sexual escapades, theft and fraud leaving her to believe she may very well be losing the battle for her sanity. Nearing the point of surrender, a breakthrough brings integration a real victory. A brave story of identity, hope, healing and love. Reminiscent of the Academy Award-winning A Beautiful Mind, this true story will have you on the edge of your seat. Spellbinding! Josh Miller, Producer
